

sending kids to boarding school	Mrs. Bowles' kids just as soon kick as kiss her	Mrs. Bowles calling Montag nasty
Montag reading the poem to the women	the poem, Dover Beach	Montag put the poetry book in the incinerating after done reading it to the ladies
Faber whispering in Montag's	Texture is one thing missing in society	Leisure time is another thing missing in society
The Right to Carry Out Action is another thing missing in society	Mrs. Phelps' husband, Pete, got sent to the war	Mrs. Phelps and her husband would not cry if each of them died comparing the parlor to a desert when the walls are off	Montag thinking back to a time when he was a child & trying to be religious	Faber reading the book of Job into
Montag ripped up the Bible to get Faber to help him save books	The fire engine stopping in front of Montag's house	Beatty's dream about them flinging quotes from books at each other
The firemen playing cards when Montag brought the book back	Montag burying some of the books in his backyard	Beatty checking Montag's pulse after he told Montag about his dream
Mechanical Hound was not in its cage when Montag returned	Faber whispering in Montag's ear that Beatty is trying to confuse him with the quotes	Faber whispering "fool" in Montag's ear after he'd read the book to the ladies
Montag yelling at Mrs. Bowles about her marriages, abortions & children who hate her	Mrs. Phelps crying after Montag reading the poem to the ladies	Women voting for president based on the guy's looks

Mrs. Phelps repeating herself	Montag shutting off the breaker for the wall-TV's	Beatty drove the salamander
Montag hands Faber the Bible before he leaves his house	the reference to Hercules & Antaeus story	Montag talks to Faber by phone green-bullet-like radio in Montag's ear	the $400-$500 needed to print a copy of a book	the verse about the Lilies
Beatty's voice is like butter	the plan to plant books in fireman's houses	the deal Montag's cousin made him when they were young about the sand & the sieve
the sand=the words the sieve=his brain	Montag asking Mildred if the white clown loves her	upon returning to the fire station, Montag felt like his hands were covered in blood so he kept washing them